Reflective Learning – Stroke Prevention in Atrial Fibrillation is a new online Section 3 accredited self-assessment program for Canadian specialists to reflect on their treatment choices for stroke prevention in their AF patients.

PROGRAM LEARNING OBJECTIVES

This program is designed to help specialists:

- Identify patients with newly-diagnosed or established AF who may benefit from oral anticoagulant therapy for stroke risk reduction.
- Assess current practice patterns with respect to the use of oral anticoagulant therapy for stroke prevention in these patients.
- Compare current practices to those of peers as well as to the Canadian Cardiovascular Society guideline recommendations for stroke prevention in AF.
- Identify opportunities to implement evidence-based recommendations to enhance clinical practice and patient outcomes.

MORE ABOUT SECTION 3 ACCREDITATION

New MOC cycles [Maintenance of Certification (MOC) Program, Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada (RCPC)], starting on or after January 1, 2014, require a minimum of 25 credits in each section of the MOC Program during the 5-year MOC cycle.

Section 3 accredited self-assessment programs provide physicians with the opportunity to review their knowledge and clinical judgment with current scientific evidence to identify opportunities to enhance their competencies. Self-Assessment Programs are not tests but assessment strategies to assist physicians to develop an effective continuing professional development plan linked to their professional roles and responsibilities.
